
Symantec Email Threat Detection and Response

Service Summary

Symantec Email Threat Detection and Response is a cloud-based service that uncovers and prioritizes advanced attacks entering your organization through email by adding advanced detection technologies such as cloud-based sandboxing and click-time URL protection to the Symantec Email Security.cloud service. In addition, it helps accelerate your response to targeted and advanced threats with advanced email security analytics that provide the deepest visibility into targeted & advanced attack campaigns. This intelligence includes insights into both clean and malicious emails as well as more Indicators of Compromise (IOCs) than any other vendor, with 60+ data points such as URLs, file hashes, and targeted attack information.

You can export this data to your Security Operations Center to quickly determine the severity and scope of any targeted or advanced attack. Furthermore, you can quickly remediate email attacks by automatically blacklisting Indicators of Compromise (IOCs) found while hunting threats. Moreover, Email Threat Detection and Response reduces the risk of phishing by preparing your users to recognise the latest phishing attacks with built-in security awareness training. Finally, when used alongside Symantec Endpoint Detection and Response and the Secure Web Gateway family to detect advanced threats, you can automatically correlate events across all control points.
